The President's Message

BRYCE DOXZON

As gatherings go the Maryland TAMS meeting during the MANA convention on October 19, was a rather small one, but those who were there still got to "talk shop" between themselves and find a few items to buy or sell in the auction. The meeting was publicized in the previous issue of the journal, so perhaps the small crowd was merely reflective of attendance at the convention in general.

Our first annual swap meet, on the other hand, was the scene for a major accomplishment. After five years, we at long last liquidated our book debt! Treasurer Pete Burris proudly presented a check for the final $250 to MSNA President Jack Pryor (see photo elsewhere in this issue). We voted to continue the book fund for s supporting the possible future publication of an addendum to Maryland Merchant Tokens. One table set up for sales of MD TAMS souvenirs, books, and wooden nickels and flats raised over $100 for that book fund. I would like to thank Russ Sears, Jim Shipley, Frank Pugliese, Ed Craig and Jim Boswell for taking tables at the swap meet. A special thanks goes to Jan Pugliese for providing and serving hot dogs and sodas (with brownies from the Hajeks) to all who attended. Besides the above individuals tables there were tables available for members to swap, sell or buy exonumia or books, and those saw good activity as well. All in all, this swap meet looks well on its way to being an established annual event.

Future meetings are set for January 18 at the Ann Arrundell County Historical Society (see info elsewhere in this issue) and for March 21 at Gordon Berg's coin show at Festival Hall. I'll plan on seeing you at both meetings. Untill then, happy and safe holidays to one and all!

From The Editor

...taking the tongue out of the cheek....

THE BUDGET GRINCH ISN'T GOING TO STEEL THIS CHRISTMAS!

Whew! What a year! Budget cuts - Market dips - Lay offs...etc, etc.. at the community college where I work we are going to be furloughed for a few days which will cost me a few bucks.... it seems as though the old Budget Grinch is trying to steel our Christmas....but....

Lots of good things have happened this year even if you have to look a little longer and deeper to find them in this era of doom and gloom.

At the end of each year I usually take time to reflect upon the events of the passing year. It seems as though I still have much to be thankful for... probably more than the average folk. Among the many items on my list are organizations like MD TAMS. And not so much because I enjoy the tokens which bond us, but because of the fellowship which abounds.

Take the recent "swap meet". Amongst my wheeling and dealing activities, Millard Hajek tossed me an old Annapolis note which he knew I'd be interested in and said, "It's yours for the 5 bucks it cost me". No doubt that it was worth much more to me, but Millard came across the note and bought it with me in mind, and offered it to me for his costs if I liked it.

Like it!... That's putting it mildly... I loved it!... and I'm still marveling at the unselfishness and thoughtfulness of Millard to pick it up especially for me! What greater gift can you give a person than unselfish thoughtfulness! The note was a great gift, but the act was a gift of grace.

Despite my furlough, the budget Grinch isn't going to steel this Christmas. No Way! not with people like Millard.

Amid the doom and gloom.. don't let the old Grinch steel your Christmas... count your blessings and include MD TAMS as one of your blessings... where else can you find tokens of fellowship ... come to our meetings and discover the bonds for yourself... hope to see you at the Benson -Hammond House (BWI) on January 18th..
In the meantime have a wonderful holiday season...

BLUM'S TELLS THE TRUTH

THE BLUM'S CHARGE TOKEN EXPOSED

By: Russ Sears

I can still remember seeing the Blum's Lucky 7 token when I was a coin dealer in Baltimore during the early and mid-1960's. Back then, tokens weren't worth anything, so I did not pay a lot of attention to them. Too bad.

When charge tokens were catalogued in recent years, I stayed fairly quiet about my feelings about the Blum's piece. I thought that there were just too many of them to be charge tokens, but more important, I felt that the numbers would be hard to read by the sales clerk, many of whom were elderly ladies.

Recently, I purchased several account books, some of which were from Blum's. These are the books in which your credit purchases were posted along with your payments, usually required on a weekly basis. What is most interesting about the books is the use of the Blum's "charge token".

Blum's, located at 301-319 N. Gay Street was the "Originator of the LUCKY SEVEN idea and The Home of the Scarab LUCK CHARM". The charms were free to any adult who requested one. No purchase was necessary. They were for good luck from " THE LUCKY-7 TRUTH STORE" where "BLUM'S TELLS THE TRUTH".

So, now the truth is known. The Blum's Lucky Seven token is not a charge token, but merely a good luck piece.

IMPORTANT

This book is your record. For your own protection, be sure to have it receipted when you make payment. When you move, write or phone us your new address. If this book should be called in for audit, insist on a receipt showing balance. Should you lose this book, report it at once.

THE "MARYLAND 400" AT LONG ISLAND

Articles in "The Sun" (Baltimore newspaper) recently reported on the rededication of a Maryland military monument in Brooklyn, New York.

The monument to Marylanders who died covering George Washington's retreat from Long Island was rededicated on Tuesday, August 27, 1991 after being cleared of stain, rust, chipping and graffiti. Governor William Donald Schaeffer and the Commission on Maryland Military Monument joined New York officials in marking the 215th anniversary of the battle of the restored monument,"The Maryland 400", in Brooklyn's Prospect Park. The "Maryland 400" played a significant role in saving Washington's army by repeatedly attacking pursuing British soldiers at Gowans Creek on August 27, 1776. Only about a third of the unit made it back to friendly lines while 250 Maryland soldiers died in the battle. Washington was moved to exclaim: "Good God! What brave fellows this day I must lose".

The monument, a marble column and orb inside a wrought-iron fence, was designed by Stanford White and erected in 1895.

Following is a selection of medals from my collection issued to commemorate the event. The oval medals appear to have the remains of an attachment or a hole which indicates that the medals probably were part of a badge. Some of our badge collecting MD TAMS members may be able to shed some more light on this.

A MARYLAND MEDAL FROM A CEREAL PROMOTION

How do you acquire tokens or medals for your personal collection? Of course, I know some of the sources like the MD TAMS Auction, Flea Markets, Coin Shows (including Collectable Shows), and trading with fellow collectors. But have you ever added to your collection while eating a bowl of cereal for breakfast? Well, I added the Maryland medal illustrated below to my collection which came in a cereal promotion for Alpha Bits. I acquired the piece in 1980 so I assume that the cereal promotion was sometime in the late 1970's. Let's hear about your unique and interesting way that you added a token or medal to your collection and maybe you can bring it in for a Show-And-Tell session!

THE HOPKINS ALUMNI MEDAL

Edgar Heyl

In the spring of 1983 The Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore held a fiftieth anniversary meeting for members of the class of 1933, and it was an elaborate several-day event. I am a member of this class and so, a little while later I was astonished--and very pleased--to receive a large, handsome medal which the University arranged to have made for each member of the class.

One side of the medal has, around the field, THE JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY, FIFTY YEAR ALUMNUS. In the field is the official seal of the University, and above it is 1876, the year in which the University was founded. The other side shows a monument that has been located at the front of the campus for many years. This stone piece is fifteen or so feet tall and it topped with a large bronze bust of Johns Hopkins. Near the base are his name and dates 1795 and 1873. Seated at the left and right sides of the base are bronze statues of two semi-nude women. Below the base on the medal are 1933 and the name of the class member who was to receive the medal. The inclusion of the latter makes each medal unique. Only 164 of them were produced for members of the 1933 class.

Made of bronze, this medal is 7.6 cm. in diameter, 0.7 cm. thick, and it weighs eight ounces. Struck in the plain edge is the name of the firm that made it, the Medallic Art Company of Danbury, Conn., and there is an indication that the medal was copyrighted in 1982.

I was surprised to learn from the Alumni Office that Hopkins has been issuing these fifty year alumni medals each year for about thirty years. Since I have not seen any of the earlier medals I do not know if they were all of the same design, but since the medal described here had its design copyrighted in 1982, one must assume that it was somewhat different than previous issues.

S. JACKSON - BALTIMORE

By: Russ Sears

In addition to collecting Baltimore tokens and medals, I collect Baltimore books containing history, business listings, and advertisements. A recent acquisition included an 1833 book containing information about S. Jackson, who made the " S. Jackson Baltimore " counterstamp.

S. Jackson is listed as being a cutler and surgical instrument maker located at the corner of Liberty and German (now Redwood) Streets. The counterstamp is on a United States 1834 half cent, and according to David Schenkman in the Maryland Merchant Tokens book, is the only specimen known of this counterstamp.

ELONGATEDS OF MARYLAND
A CATALOGING EFFORT

BY MILLARD W. HAJEK LM#1

The year 1985 was a memorable one for local collectors who saw a proliferation of elongated coins issued for Baltimore. That year, Baltimore was host to the American Numismatic Association (ANA) convention and as part of the festivities, the TEC (The Elongated Collector) organization held their annual meeting as part of the convention activities. Many of tEC's members issue elongateds for this event and the cataloging effort of these issues are listed below.

Christmas issues similar to the ones illustrated above are a very popular "Christmas card" type greeting given out by many elongated collectors. Many are included in the design of a card especially made for the elongated. Many elongated rolleds carry stock designs and they are quite plentiful prior to the yuletime season. They are a great novelty to give to your friends, both collector and non-collector and make a great souvenir for the Christmas season.

This brings to a close this issue of the catalonging efforts of elongateds.

THE BOOKMOBILE MEDAL

Edgar Heyl

Bookmobiles have long been used by public libraries. They are a means of bringing a variety of books to areas that the library serves so that people there could borrow them, and later return them to the bookmobile when it came back. This was the idea of Miss Mary Titcomb, a librarian at the Washington County Free Library. In her history of this library, which was published about 1931, she indicated that their original bookmobile was a specially built wagon with outside shelving and storage space inside, and it was drawn by two horses. When it was put in use in April 1907, it was the first bookmobile in the United States.

In September 1969 the Interstate Coin Club of Hagerstown issued a fine medal celebrating this event. However, it did give the starting date of the bookmobile as 1905 instead of 1907. I have two examples of this medal, one in bronze and one in silver, both 39 mm. in diameter and medal-struck. The edge of the bronze medal is blank, but stamped in the edge of the silver one in tiny, incuse letters is THE METAL ARTS CO. INC., ROCH., N. Y., --.999 SILVER, and since this was a numbered edition, a little further along is 144.

STADIUM MEMORABILIA

Commemorative coin to honor new ballpark

Now that you've bought your very last Memorial Stadium souvenir, get ready for a brand-new world of memorabilia: the Oriole Park at Camden Yards commemorative coin.

The Maryland Stadium Authority approved an agreement yesterday with Eastern Athletic Services, Summit Broadcasting Corp. and Kemper/Lesnik Organization to strike a collector's edition silver coin to commemorate the first game in the new ballpark.

The price: $29.95. The edition: limited to 47,000, the approximate number of seats in the new stadium.

The coins are sold through a licensing agreement with Major League Baseball. "Apparently they're hotter than baseball cards," said Allison Asti, counsel for the Stadium Authority.

For each coin sold, the Stadium Authority will collect $2.25. Because about 42,000 will be for sale (5,000 will be retained by the producers for gifts), the authority stands to make about $94,500 from the souvenir.

MINUTES- MD TAMS; September 7, 1991

Our meeting was called to order at 12:12 pm. by President Bryce Doxzen. After a brief welcome, the secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and approved. It was noted that our club still owes $250 to MSNA for the book fund.

In the mailbag were an exhibit application for the MANA show, a MSNA seminar, and a notice for the Associated Club Meet. A sign-up sheet was passed around for table requests for the Nov. 16 TAMS Swap Meet.

Under Old Business, Ed Craig announced he was still awaiting news from the Navy on the commissioning of the Sub MD. Jim Boswell indicated that he had written 39 letters to historical societies advertising the MD Tokens Book but thus far, had no response from any. Pete Burris, concerning book sales, indicated that he had one response for purchase of books for library donations and two more from the floor today. He reminded that members that for a $20 donation a copy of the TAMS book would be sent in the name of that club member to a library for reference use. Jan Pugliese called for members to send her any unlisted MD tokens to be included in the news article.

Under New Business, our club is considering a meeting in the Glen Burnie library which Jim Boswell and Wil Mumford will pursue. Bryce agree to request information on the free Specialty Club Forum. He also announced that the Ottobein Church in Baltimore had a free church tour that Saturday including a display of religious medals and a panoramic map of Baltimore City. Both Russ Sears and Mil Hajek showed Baltimore medals as part of the Show and Tell segment of our meeting. Jack Pryor then distributed ANA elongated cents to club members present.

There being no further business, the meeting was adjourned and our club auction followed.

Respectfully submitted,
Jan Pugliese, Secretary
